THE OUTRIGGER CLUB

EDITOR STAR: The affairs of the Outrigger Canoe Club are moving along, and it now looks as if Ford's idea of reviving the interest in the old Hawaiian sports is to be carried out, if not improved upon. The new officials have started in earnest to put things in ship shape order and to do them upon a business-like basis.

For instance, the dancing hall is now being altered improved and strengthened, and in such a manner as to increase its beauty and durability. This dancing hall, we may say, is to play no unimportant part in the future. And it is proposed not only to use it for dancing, but as a social hall and club house where afternoon tea parties and clam chowders etc., can be served and where the members can bring their children and unite their funds for an outing.

Here will be an ideal place for the children to paddle the small canoes in the smooth water of the lagoon, right under their mother's eye; or they can play in the sand, or bathe in the sea, or lie in the shade of the trees, or do any old thing they wish. It is also proposed to have this hall and the grounds fitted with electric light, later on, and to make the whole place a thing of beauty and a joy forever. It is also proposed to put the grounds in better order, to build a wall along the side of the grounds, and to repair the

JIM LANE IS DEAD

RELIEVED AFTER 14 YEARS OF
SUFFERING WHICH BEGAN IN REVOLUTION.

James Lane died last night at the Lane residence at Alewa, this city, after fourteen years of suffering and more or less mental darkness which was the result of his being made a prisoner, with many others, as a rebel, in the revolution of 1895, and of his being struck in the head with the butt of a rifle when he endeavored to escape, in 1895, from the guarded police station wherein twenty-seven were confined.

But a few days ago an operation, the second during his illness, was performed, a portion of the bone of the skull being removed from pressing on the brain and, after fourteen years, it was hoped that he was on the road to recovery, but other ailments indirectly induced by his mental condition hastened the end of him who was naturally in a feeble condition following the delicate operation, and he died of a dropsical affection.

James Lane was one of those who joined in the vain movement for restoration of his country's individuality and at the time of his imprisonment as a rebel in the police station, the old armory, the jail and the police station were full of Hawaiians and their sympathizers.

Joseph J. Fern, now Mayor of Honolulu, was a prisoner with Jimmy Lane, as was also Fern's brother, Henry, and many others who are today prominent citizens of this Territory. The twenty-seven confined to the police station had been kept in the cells below for a number of days and then were taken up to the police court room, a number of armed guards herding them in.

While being marched upstairs from the cells to the court room one of the guards, a man who died only the other day, teasingly told the prisoners that they were soon to be taken out and shot.

James Lane became despondent upon becoming a prisoner, feeling that his cause was lost, and when he was told that he was to be shot with the others he commenced to form plans for escape. Two or three weeks of confinement in the court room were enough for him and at least he broke through the line of guards, knocked three of them down stairs, made the flight of stairs from the center landing to opposite what is now the door to the sheriff's office, tottering over two more guards, only to be smashed in the head with the butt of a rifle swung by a mounted guard outside, who at the time was standing near the curb, the man who delivered the blow being today an employee of the Inter-Island Steam Navigation Company.

James Lane was always tenderly cared for by his brothers, the idea of sending him to an asylum being repellant to their sense of the consideration due their afflicted brother.

At times he was violent, but all that was possible was done to relieve his suffering. At times he was entirely rational and on those occasions exhibited a rare talent for conversation and showed his splendid education, being deeply interested in and conversant with history and literature.

He was a giant in strength, as may be noted from the way he handled five armed guards in his effort to escape imprisonment fourteen years ago.

James Lane was the son of the late William Carey Lane, mariner and farmer who at one time controlled the major portion of the lands of Koolauloa and Koolapoko. There survive him his brothers Patrick, of Wai-alea, and Lot, John and Richard of Honolulu, and his sister Jessie Kane. Maria Ena and Helen Aona. His brother William and his sisters Mary, and Pua (Carter) being deceased.

James C. Lane was born at Makoa, Koolauloa, windward side of this island on October 27, 1873, being but a little over 35 years of age. He was a graduate of St. Louis College, this city. The funeral is private.

Edmund H. Hart is in town from Maui and will return home soon. He will be clerk in Judge Kingsbury's court.

SCHOOLS ALSO IN BIG PARADE

MORE COMPETITION FOR THE PRIZES IN THE BIG ANNUAL FLORAL PARADE.

There is a good opportunity for persons who may not be able to personally take part in Honolulu's big Floral Parade on account of press of business, to help none the less effectively by making it possible for others who are anxious to take part, to do so. Frank Atherton, Chairman of the Committee on Schools, reports that practically all of the schools in the city want to be represented, but that some of them will not be able to do so unless they are assisted in the matter of expense connected with decorating an automobile or float. The pupils of these institutions feel keenly the disappointment of not being represented when other and perhaps rival schools are going to take part, and it is to be hoped that there will be enough interest among patrons of the schools to supply the comparatively small amount of money necessary for every one of them to have some kind of a decorated vehicle to represent them.

Kamehameha Schools, Oahu College, the High School, Aliiolani College, and Kaulahalo Seminary have all reported that they will take part, and some others may be able to do so; but there are a number which state frankly that they cannot see their way clear to spend the $15 to $25 necessary to decorate a vehicle. The general committee expects to be able to furnish automobiles or carriages without cost to schools who will decorate them, but will not be able to do more than this, so it is simply a matter of getting money enough to buy bunting, flags, etc. which the students will be only too glad to make use of.

Chairman W. H. McInerney, of the Committee on Hawaiian Princesses is feeling easy in the assurance that his section has its success assured. Three of the Islands have already secured their representatives, and only Hawaii and Maui have not yet been heard from. Mr. McInerney wrote to both of these by yesterday's mail and expects to hear something definite within a few days. Should the two largest islands not be able to send a Princess, each of them is well represented in Honolulu, and it will be possible to supply their Princess without difficulty, although it is much preferred that the Islands each name their choice. The name of Kauai's representative has not yet been learned, but assurance has been received from Francis Gay that he has one selected, who will come supplied with her own horse. Molokai, as stated yesterday, will be represented by Mrs. Thos. C. Blackwell, while Mrs. Harry Holt is Oahu's selection. Mr. McInerney hopes to get his corps of thirty or more children who will act as guard of honor to the Princesses, gathered together within the next week, for a preliminary drill; it being his intention that the children shall ride in various formations during the march. This part of the parade promises to be especially effective.

The Importance of Purity in Food

cannot be overlooked by the careful housewife. Jellies, preserved fruits, pickles, catsups, sweetmeats, etc., are too often put up with harmful preservatives, not to mention the artificial flavorings and coloring matter. Everyone KNOWS that

KING GILES BUGHOUSE

George E. Giles, the "King of Hawaii," left his throne at the police station this morning and is now ensconced in a new home at the insane asylum. He was given a hearing at 10:30 by Judge Andrade, and soon after was turned over to Superintendent Peterson.

Giles, who is part white, is a native of the Friendly Islands, aged 27. Some five months ago he came here from California, having shifted from place to place in the States for four or five years. Most of the time since his arrival he has worked for John Ouderkirk as a carpenter. He lived at the Popular House on upper Fort street.

Last Saturday, according to Mr. Ouderkirk, Giles was laid off, together with fourteen other men, owing to lack of work immediately ahead. The contractor did not notice anything unusual in the matter with him.

Deputy Rose and Dr. Emerson both testified as to the delusion under which the young man was laboring. He stated that he had been elected last Saturday King of Hawaii and was preparing to take charge of the government. His plans in relation to departmental reorganization were as yet incomplete; but one thing he would insist upon was the elimination of everything American in the government. The American government he declared, had cheated him out of a house one time which had cost him $500 and he would now get even.

Dr. Emerson based his opinion of insanity largely upon the man's illogical and ridiculous talk. It was not claimed or even suggested that the fellow was a user of drugs, although the sound of the wrangle over the Atchery case has hardly yet died on the atmosphere about the police court. It was brought out, however, that King Giles was a heavy drinker at times, he having appeared often at his lodgings in decidedly hilarious condition.

MILITIA AND U. S. ENCAMPMENT

Active preparations are under way for the National Guard encampment at Moanalua, to begin February 18. There will be over five hundred. National Guardsmen in camp and they will have the benefit of observing the doings of the regular troops during their outing, for the companies of the Twentieth Infantry at Fort Snatter are also going into camp at the same time and place. The camp will be located near the famous golf links, an ideal spot.

Eight paikau players were arrested by Officer Madeiros a noon and will answer tomorrow morning to the charge of gambling.

Permission has been asked of the Mayor for the Hawaiian band to play at the Kakaako mission. Granted. They will hire them for the ride or take the train to the door—either is good enough for the average man.

February 6, Tag Day, will interest everybody.
